

Module 06: A European Crisis? Demographics and Immigration

Evidence 8: Net Migration of France, Germany, and the United Kingdom, 1960-2003

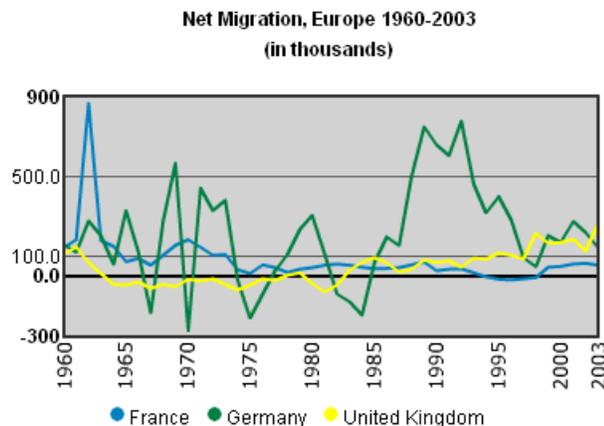

Introduction

Net migration is the total number of individuals immigrating to a country, minus the number leaving that country and emigrating to another. Net migration tells you how much the total population is changing due to individuals coming and going.

Questions to Consider

- Which of the three countries has the most absolute immigration?
- Which has the least?
- How do you account for the sharp spikes like the one in France in the early sixties?

Data

Source: Eurostat.